

Claims

- [c1] 1.– Improved anchoring device for terminal boxes in service boxes, constituted of a slide (1) closure mechanism articulated with a lid or cover (2) of a connector (3), characterized in that said slide consists of respective longitudinal guides running parallel and next to the sides of the body of the connector (3), being articulated to said lid or cover (2) of the connector on a side thereof by means of two double pivoting points (4), each one of said double points enveloping each one of the profiles of the slide on both lateral sides by means of a pivoting point, constituting an articulation of four pivoting points between the slide (1) and lid or cover (2) of the connector.
- [c2] 2.– Improved anchoring device for terminal boxes in service boxes according to claim 1, characterized in that the outer wall of said slide (1) of the connector is coincident with that of the outermost pivoting points (4).